JOHN TOMATOSTICK

My story is quite tragic. I have never had an ambition to become a famous outlaw. I was from a complete, catholic and happy family ,but after my teenage period I started to have big problems. I was always thirsty! Always! The only hope for me was just to ride across Texas and drink... the fresh water, of course. All that came to the point that I drank full reservoirs and wells of water. But the farmers weren` t enjoying it, actually. They said there were about 4000 cows dead because of the lack of water. So one day a sheriff came to arrest me and let me to die of thirst in a jail. I think I am one of the few outlaws- if not the only one- in the world history who had no gun or something like that.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

Have you ever heard of me? I used to be the most searched robber in the country...but I had a serious reason for committing my crimes.

My father had owned the best farm of the whole Wild West. Yes, it was a great time. But one day sheriff Jake proclaimed my father a thief and stole our home. So I decided to revenge. For several years I was "taking back" what was mine from the sheriff`s men who murdered my father and made an orphan of me.

The best horses and cows... I stole everything from the sheriff and sold it to the Indians. Sheriff and his men weren`t able to get me. But after I took the last horse and was hurrying to the borders , my horse stumbled.

I fell down and broke my neck.

What a pity.

WANTED

LUCKY LUCY

When I was a young girl I decided to become a soldier. My dream came true but during one mission in Africa I lost my hearing so I couldn't go on in my profession. My new career started when one of the Italians offered me a job. I started with smuggling alcohol during the prohibition in the USA. One day they ordered me to kill a cop who wanted to detect us. I was waiting for him in front of his office and followed him in a car. He stopped in front of the night club at the empty car park area. I went out of the car and walked towards him. In the quiet street only loud shots sounded. Suddenly I saw a young girl watching me. I hurried into the car and drove away. My adventurous life finished that pretty day. As I was running up the stairs to my small attic flat, I slipped on a banana peel and fell down the stairs.
